“ Dear Mommy, today is your birthday. You never liked the age thing but you are 92 years old today. Sure do miss you. I miss Daddy and Marie. We are fine on this earth but we have times when we just don't know what to do. Guess what? Karl had a birthday yesterday. I try to keep the tradition up of giving him a little something and I did. Obie called me this morning and said it is your mother's birthday today. Mommy he calls me for everybody's birthday here or there. I think he misses you the most. The other day he said that some of the people in rehab don't have homes to visit. I felt sad because he is so grateful that he can visit his house when he wants. He has taken over Daddy's room now and he is a proud man.

Well just wanted you to know that you are always in my heart and my daily thoughts. Duck is doing well. He is the President of the 7th District now. Obie calls him the President. Bet Daddy would have been over the moon and you to.

Karl Jr just made a year of being married. Is that not amazing?

Well I will write more next time. Love you Mommy

“ Dear Mommy,

I miss you still every day. It's almost 2 years and the joy you gave me is still in my heart. I wish I could tell you some of the things that have been going on since you went away. I just never thought you would leave me (or maybe I just didn't think of my life without you). You were such a good Mommy and I loved you so much. We did so much together and we talked on the phone all the time. It was like I was away from you but you were always just a phone call away. I know you are safe now and resting peacefully; I can't be selfish because you lived your life as God wanted you to and you did all the things that you knew were in our best interest.

Joel Jr. and I talk about you at times but I am the one that cries the most as I see it. I am sure all your children love you the same but I am the one that expresses it more with tears or maybe not. I just drive sometimes and I call your name "Mommy" out loud. I can still feel your warm body next to mine because I hugged you every chance I could when the end was near.

I carry Chase in my car every day and the little fellow just stares at me sometimes. That is the one stuffed animal I did not give to Marie. Although Marie has all the others you had during your illness. Yes, she keeps them on her bed still and of course you know her gadgets are there also.

We are having a global pandemic Mommy and you would have been so concerned if you were here but everyone has had their vaccination with the exception of Karl Jr. You know how he doesn't like needles and I have texted him every day to remind him the importance of getting vaccinated.

Eventually, I guess Williams will take down your obituary and I will have to continue writing in my journal but this way I can look at your beautiful smile and think happy thoughts.

I haven't been home since March of last year due to COVID and then I decided that I just didn't want to drive alone or with anyone anyway. People are really depressed Mommy and I am so glad you don't have to withstand all that the world has been going through. I love you Mommy. I look forward to seeing you on the other side.

Mommy thank you for always remembering my name when i came *to see you. That was my one daily prayer that you would never forget my name.

Love you Mommy.....*

“ Dear Mommy,

*You have been gone almost a month now and every step I take I remember you. I cry for so many reasons. The last time we were together I didn't want you to take the pain and agony anymore. I had to let go because I knew you were tired of being pulled and more pulling every day. Your lips were bleeding and the more I wiped them the more they bleed. I whispered in your ear how much I loved you and how you taught me so much in my journey. Every morning when I wake up I say OMG my Mom is not here anymore. I take a deep breath and I start my day. I wanted you to be pain free and I wanted your lips to be clear and smooth as they once were. I miss you Mom but I can't be selfish. Your celebration was very nice and everyone said nice things about you. Duck and I had to speak as the eldest children and I managed to speak and not break down. I knew you would want me to be strong (like you). Marie is doing well and so is Karl Jr. You know Marie never cries but she does talk about you with Duck. Karl Jr. graduates next May and I am being there for him as you always were. I bet Daddy is glad you are there with him; you know he never liked being by himself. I write in my journal everyday about something pertaining to you and Daddy. Oh Mommy you were so good to us here on earth. I love you very much. Btw, Chase your little stuffed animal now rides in the car with me everyday. I gave Marie the other 3 stuff animals that you had.
Mommy, Mommy, Mommy.*

“ Mrs. Greene, I never got the chance to meet you but have become a close friend of Cheryl's and she is following in your footsteps to being a wonderful person like I heard you were. My prayers and sympathy to the entire Greene family and wishing you are resting in peace with Rev Joel Greene. Watch over Cheryl and I will be here to comfort her during this hard time.
