“ To start this memory, it begins with a question and a statements. When Uncle Earl would come to our house he would always asked for his baby brother. Then, Ann would say, Uncle Earl I don't know where I am going and his response would be wherever the car takes you with a smirk on face. This was an inside joke between the two of them. Therefore, we are taking this memory back from the beginning.

When we were children, Uncle Earl and Aunt Willie Mae would always come to our house. Mommy and Daddy would always cooked for them and they would enjoy the food and the company.

In addition, Uncle Earl would love to talk. He would have elaborate and long conversations with us. Sometimes, we would wonder what it would lead to, but at the end of the conversation, we understood the messages and sometimes just had a good laugh about the conversations.

Also, he had a standing reservation on Sundays and the holidays with us. Uncle Earl said that he knew we would have some good food cooked. He especially enjoyed Lisa's rice dressing and cabbage. Also, he knew Daddy would always have cracklins and sweet potatoes. He would bring his containers to take food home with him. After he would finished eating, Daddy and him would have conversations in French or both would fall asleep.

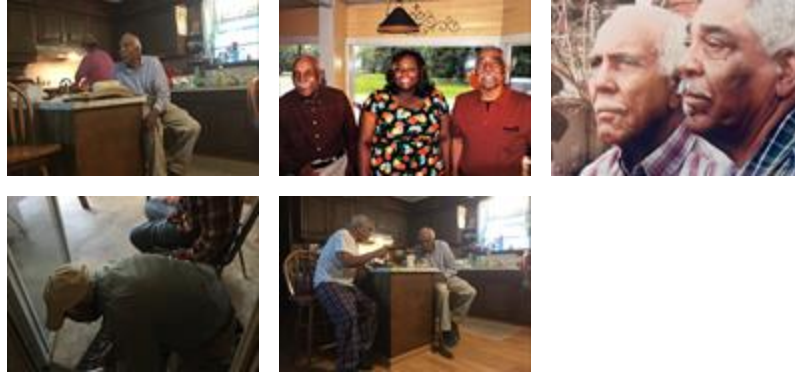

Our relatives know that if they need us for something we are a phone call away. Uncle Earl knew that quite well. He would call us to help with his phone, television, or review something he needed clarity on. Sometimes, it would take a couple of hours, but we knew he appreciated it.

To end this memory, it starts with the statements again. I don't know where I going and the answer is wherever the car takes you. This time the car is taking to your final home where you are reunited with your love ones.

We love you and will miss you.

From your Baby Brother's daughters and granddaughter
