“ This was my grandma.....no matter what we went through,she kept a positive mind-set. Her main hobby was praying and watching preachers on television. She prayed and fought cancer for over a year. This woman is the strongest woman that was ever in my life.....and now she's gone. I think about her every single day and sometimes dream about her. She always told me not to cry when she passed away...but i couldn't help it...she was more of a mother to me than my own mom was. She was very elegant and liked her house spotless. Sometimes i got sick of watching pastors talk over and over all day, but in the end, the lords all we got. Instead of making a relationship with friends she had, she took that time to build a relationship with the lord. This is why she's my role model. She didn't turn to god in bad times. She prayed to him in times of good and bad. Personally, i don't think she deserved to go through all what she did. But, god did say he wouldn't give you any task you can't handle,and she held on for over a year. I don't think i would even last a month to be real. Unlike me, she was very strong minded,strong in faith, and physically strong as well. Sometimes i wonder why it couldn't have been me instead. Every day i stayed with her in the hospital, i always heard her ask,"Why me,Lord". All she wanted was to get back to her hard-earned home and continue her life. But, now she's home for real this time. Rest in Peace Momo....and thanks for everything you've ever done for us. I'll be at your side again one day after i complete my mission on earth.
